

HOWELL PARK
Arboretum & Learning Gardens
 Bremen, Ohio

Welcome to Howell Park Arboretum and Learning Gardens. The park's arboretum includes a collection of more than 100 trees accented by seasonal gardens throughout.

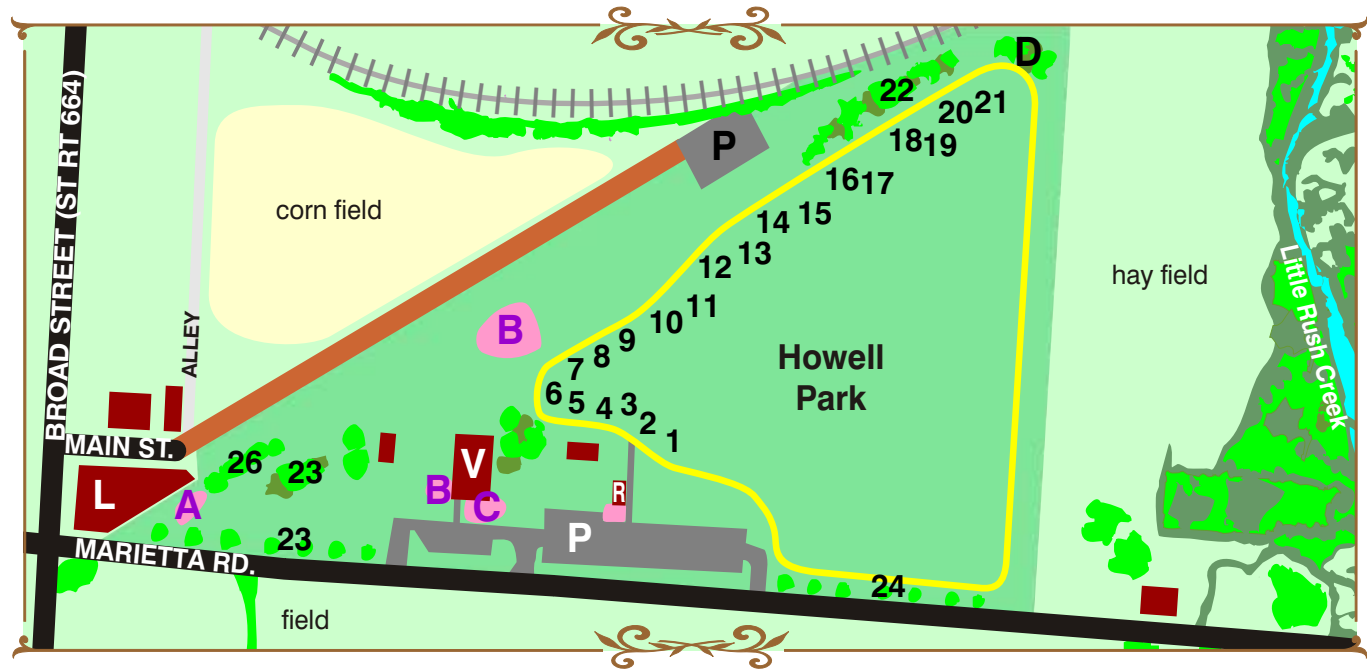

For more than a century, Bremen has quietly enjoyed an enviable reputation of tree-lined, brick streets. The tradition of tree-lined streets begins with Dr. Frank Strayer.

The 1934 Bremen Centennial Book credits Dr. Strayer with, "The trees along many of our roadways is the dream of shade and fruit to the traveler". Strayer's tradition was revived in the spring of 1996 under the direction of the village's first tree commissioner, Tad Moyer. The village continues to support annual tree plantings.

This guide includes a map of the tree types and gardens located within the park's current boundaries. The various trees and gardens are identified throughout. The Bremen Tree Board hopes that you will find this guide educational as well as helpful in getting better acquainted with our tree-friendly town.
